EDITORIAL

“There is a crowd ahead,” I said, “at the public boards.”

“They seem angry,” he said.

(Magicians of Gor)

Landa is growing every day. Our trade routes are starting to materialize and our goods are be coming known. Sugar, coco, grapes, raisins, ramberries and palm wine are just some of the many goods Landa produces. The palm wine of Landa has a reputation outside the city walls of being the favorite of many visitors.

Our trade allanice with Port Loyalair is strong. they provide Landa with kalda, kalana, Falarian wine and other goods.

Trade is the backbone of isles and port cities, without it they would slowly fade away. Lets make Landa trade strong, thus increasing the strength of our city. We all, merchants and non-merchants can make the rest of gor aware of all Landa has to offer.

Any news, articles, poems, gossip, schedules, paintings, jokes you have, please send them to the editor or co-editor. You are looking for a free companion, a slave, an assassin? Advertisements are very welcome.

The Landa Times changes its title to IANDA TIMES.

"It took us a long time to find another Island to make our home. We wanted someplace warm and if possible tropical as well.

Finally we found Landa or as we later found out, it was also called landa." (from "The Story of how Landa came to be")

LYRICS

She Wore My Collar Made of Finest Rope

The Fates were good to me and I declare
I've now a gorgeous girl both young and fair
How lucky one can be I do not know
On this one object I can surely crow
I've now a girl in collar at my side
She is my inspiration and my pride
To kill or die for that's a saying true
Her grace and charm a poet's life imbue
This bliss excites and scares me through and through
I quake with fever, chills, and passion too
If this be hypnagogic state or not
She fires my lust with gestures flaming hot
I must cry out; I cannot hold my tongue
She thrills my soul and leaves my reason hung

A poem to Sari (only) from Taunus Trumbo

- TETRAPOLI FLEER

Calenture Sabra slowly steps to the rail of the broken ship looking around seeing the wonder on the citizens faces..the look in their eyes. tips My head up to the sky past the tilted splintered mast that used to hold the sail.....digs in My pouch finding the last dry piece of renece paper ...

to My Brothers if this is even found looks up seeing the smoke cover the land

Tetrapoli has been struck by the Priest Kings it has fallen and crumbled as did Koroba...I am drifting out at sea not sure where the currents will pull the ship. As many citizens that could make it is here on the ship. We are surviving on what we can catch at sea by binding a slave in ropes hanging her over the side. rubs My eyes, I see what looks like and island it looks like land. If possssssssss.....dam waves....If possible will ship wreck there and find a way to repair the ship for traveling back to the Vosk.....

Calenture Sabra

rolls up the scroll shoving it inside an empty paga bottle slamming the cork back into the neck ...looks over the rail at the currents tossing the bottle like discarded silks from a slut. raises My hands placing them on My hips realizing My sword is gone...at least we are alive.

- THE TALE OF THE LOST SHIP OF TETRAPOLI

..... glooms looking over the side of the ship tilted in the sand of the shore. Scans My eyes across the edge of the tree line looking for life. watches the sway of the strange looking trees in the wind. turns with a thud of My boots across the wood planks of the deck of the ship hearing the echo of the scream from the strain on the old wood. turns twisting the rope making a knot circling the rail tugging making sure it is one. Faces My back to the side of the ship keeping My eyes glued to the beach as I lower down. with a few quick steps cross the sand ducking in the shadow of a tree. reaches up grabs a branch twists it off the tree. Pulls the branch around the tree bending it in a curve attaching the thinly rolled silk ripped off one of the slaves making a bow. Scans My hand across the ground finding a few straight sticks for arrows. Creeps out from the tree circling all the shadows in search of food for those left aboard the old ship.....

CITIZENSHIP CEREMONY IN AR

At a ceremony in the Central tower today, the Fifth Day of the First Passage Hand in the Year 10163 Contasta Ar, the former ubars of Thentis and Bila Haruma, Bear and Ice, as well as Lady Vikki Raynier, HS of the HoY (Head Scribe of the House of Yuroki) were received into citizenship by Ubara Melisande.

The ceremony was conducted with great solemnity and the acclamation of the legions at its end was overwhelming. As Imperial Ar grows in power,, so may its enemies reconsider their arrogance and boasting.

Our Physicians are well trained in their caste, well versed in the medicines and procedures handed down thru the years from our ancestors. Since our city is growing so rapidly, i encourage every citizen who has a slave, please bring them in for their slave exams so we can continue to ensure the safety and health of our home stone! OOO ROLEPLAY EXAMPLES

- SLAVE CHORES

FIREPLACE

She looked up because she pricked her finger with the needle. It was late afternoon and much too dark for sewing She was sitting near the fireplace waiting for her Master. Noticing the fire had burnt down to embers, she decided to build her Master a warm fire for when he came home from the Bosk hunt. She took the basket and walked to the backyard. She knew she would find the logs there stacked against the wall near the door. She took the logs and filled up her basket. With the basket poised on her head she returned to Master's room.

Some dead twigs thrown in the embers made a very small fire, she added larger twigs to make sure it didn't go down again. The flames drew flickering shadows at the walls of the nearly dark room. She shivered and bowed forward to put some logs in the fire. Her silks slid towards her back and exposed her round soft cheeks. At this moment someone gave her a lustful slap on her cheeks. Being frightened she turned around and saw her Master standing there rubbed his hands with glee. Amused by her irritation he said: "I bet you want to beg your Master for some more slaps. I will take care you don't have a warm face only." She looked at him with eyes wide open. He smiled and sat on the furs in front of the fireplace. "My little silly fire witch" he said and pulled her close to him. "Take off my boots". She towered in front of him and took off his boots. After that she massaged his feet and lower legs until they felt warm against her hands. Her tits were bouncing with her movements and she felt her Master's gaze on her. "Good to have a warm fire during a cold night" he said. She faced him and a little smile appeared at her full lips. She knew he could see the flames reflecting in her dark brown eyes.

KNOWLEDGE

- BEGGARS ON GOR

"Kipofu, though avaricious and petty in many respects, had in him something of the sovereign. He was a highly intelligent man, and one who could, upon occasion, be wise as well as shrewd. He was a man of determination, and of iron will, and vision. It was he who had first effectively organized the beggars of Schendi, stabilizing their numbers and distributing and allotting their territories. None might now beg in Schendi without his permission and none might transgress the territory of another. And each, each week, paid his tax to Kipofu, the inevitable price of government. These taxes, though doubtless much went to the shrewd Kipofu, for monarchs expect to be well paid for bearing the burdens and tribulations of office, served to obtain benefits and insurances for the governed. No beggar now in Schendi was truly without shelter, or medical care or needed go hungry. Each tended to look out for the others, through the functioning of the system. It was said that even members of the merchant council occasionally took Kipofu into their confidence. One consequence of the organization of the beggars, incidentally, was that Schendi did not have many beggars. Obviously the fewer beggars there are the more alms there are for each one. Unwanted beggars had the choice of having their passage paid from Schendi or concluding their simple careers in the harbor." "I seek information," I said, "on one who seemed a beggar, who was called Kunguni." "Pay," said Kipofu. I put another tarsk bit into his hand. "Pay," said Kipofu. I put yet another tarsk bit into his hand. "None in Schendi who begs is known as Kunguni," he said. "Permit me to describe the man to you," I said. "How would I know of these things?" asked Kipofu. I drew forth a silver tarsk. Kipofu, I knew, through the organization of the beggars, their covering of territories, and their reports, as well as his use of them as messengers and spies, was perhaps the most informed man in Schendi."

(Explorers of Gor Pages 138 - 139)

- TAURENTIANS

“The Warriors who flanked the Administrator and High Initiate, incidentally, were Taurentians, members of the palace guard, an elite corps of swordsmen and bowmen, carefully selected, specially trained, independent of the general military organizations of the city. Their leader, or Captain, was Saphronicus, a mercenary from Tyros. I could see him a few feet behind the throne, wrapped in a scarlet cloak, a tall, spare man, long-armed and narrow-faced, whose head moved restlessly, surveying the crowd.” (Assassin of Gor)
